

GET CONNECTED

WINTER ADULT PROGRAMMING: SIGN UP NOW OPEN

Enrich your spiritual life by joining a Circle this winter! Circles are groups of 8–10 committed participants who come together with a trained leader to nurture spiritual growth in community. A variety of racial justice learning opportunities, from Circles to workshops to book discussions and film screenings, are also being offered this winter, as well as monthly programming for older adults (Daytime Connections) and young adults. Information about all of these offerings is available online and in Adult Programming Catalogs that are available to pick up outside the sanctuary. Registration for Circles is open online at firstucircles.weebly.com now through Sunday, Jan. 21.

TODAY ONLY: PHOTOGRAPHY BY GRACE TEETERS ON VIEW

There is a small photography exhibit by congregant Grace Teeters being displayed in the social hall today only entitled, "Women." This project is part of an independent study for her IB Program at Central High in St. Paul but also is for her own personal expansion as an artist. Grace wanted to capture the raw expression of seven women in her photos, accompanied by any stories that they wanted to tell her.

LESLIE BARLOW ARTIST'S RECEPTION TODAY

Paintings by artist Leslie Barlow are now on display in the sanctuary and social hall gallery through February 4. Using personal experiences as a mixed-race woman living in Minnesota as the foundation for her artwork, her paintings uplift marginalized stories and investigate the politics of representation, race, "otherness," and identity. Leslie will be in the social hall to talk more about her work after both services today. Don't miss this opportunity to meet her and learn more about her work!

DAYTIME CONNECTIONS: WRITING AN ETHICAL WILL

Leaving an ethical will is a spiritual gift to others. It's also a gift to the writer who, in the midst of life, gets to clarify life values and lessons, allowing us to be known by others. We invite you to bring a personal notebook or journal for writing and a small keepsake to help spark life memories and insights. Led by Judy Young, legacy writing facilitator, grief educator, and First U member. Join us for this month's Daytime Connections program on Thursday, Jan. 18. Program begins at 11 a.m., followed by lunch at 1 p.m. ($5–10 donation is encouraged). Registration is requested: contact Sandy DiNanni at sandy@firstuniv.org or 612-825-1701. Through Daytime Connections, older adults at First Universalist empower each other to live intentional, joyful, purposeful, and spiritually fulfilled lives.

Offering: People's Movement Center

People's Movement Center is a collective of people of color and indigenous people, of queer and trans practitioners and healers. PMC believes their purpose is to heal and be healed, to open space for the healing in justice and the justice in healing. Their intention is to bring forward marginalized and isolated healing practices, wisdoms, healers and practitioners. They are committed to doing local work, feeling a commitment to the land they practice on. PMC knows that trauma and systems of supremacy depend on disconnection. They focus their work on connection and reconnection of the self with the self, the self with community, and the self with land and spirit.

January Worship Theme: Loving

This month we are inspired by the work of Leslie Barlow, a young artist who has taken the art scene in the Twin Cities by storm. In her series of paintings called, Loving, Ms. Barlow uses the Supreme Court ruling of 1967 against anti-miscegenation (or anti interracial marriage) laws, as the launching pad for her study of family, challenging perceived family normalcy and the lack of representation of diverse family dynamics. Her series invites us into the extraordinary of ordinary love in all different kinds and variety of families. This month we explore Loving. The people we love. The variety of families from which we were born, and the big hearted call to Love found in the very DNA of our family of faith.
